Teen Topper

HERE'S A QUICK LOOK AT:

TO GET READY for college hockey at Yale University this fall, Peter Markle, 17, plans to spend the summer at road construction work "to put on some muscles."

His chances of making the Yale team seem pretty good, especially since the Blake School senior has been named Minnesota Independent School League All-conference hockey center for three years in a row.

The 5-feet 9-inch, 150-pound youth also has made the All-Twin Cities hockey team the last two years, and last year he won a place on the All-state team.

Peter, who can safely be described as sports-minded, also has played on the Blake varsity football and baseball teams. He's president of the school Athletic Association and served as co-editor of the sports page on the school newspaper, the Torch.

He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Markle, and two sisters at 345 Highcroft Lane, Wayzata.

In the top 10 of his graduating class, Peter says he's undecided about his future career.

"I'm just going to college with a broad mind," he says. In his spare time—and he says there isn't much of it—Peter enjoys dating and listening to folk music. He's even beginning to like the Beatles.

Peter also belongs to the Union, a discussion club which meets after school hours at Blake. He's taking third-year Spanish, modern problems, biology and English.

4 to Attend Washington 4-H Session

Four young Minnesotans, representing the state's 54,000 4-H members, will attend the national 4-H Club conference in Washington for a week starting next Saturday.

They are Mary Ann Schubert, 19, Buffalo; Beverly Shelstad, 17, Doran; Donald Untiedt, 18, Edgerton; and Dean Schutte, 18, Osseo.

Their selection as delegates was made on the basis of service to their 4-H clubs and on achievements in specific projects.

The trips to Washington are sponsored by the Minnesota Bankers Association.
